The Australian Government is on the brink of an historic decision – either to protect our marine life or continue oil drilling and over-fishing in our marine life hotspots. Help convince them to make the right decision by joining the Big Blue Army. The more supporters we have, the more marine life we save. Its as simple as that.

“We call on Environment Minister Tony Burke to protect Australia’s marine life by establishing a network of large marine sanctuaries around Australia, starting in our unique South West.”
